

Skyline RV Park

Bandera, TX March 2014

Time marches on, it feels like the LSS club is on a rollercoaster and we are in the first seat. The March campout seemed to come much too quick, but we were ready. Once again it was cold and windy although not as bad as February. We had a large turnout despite the weather. Most of us are arriving on Wednesday so as not to miss out on any fun.

The early birds managed to eat out twice and catch up on all the news. The rec hall was busy so we had to wait until Thursday to use it, we didn't mind-----shopping and fun a-waits.

By Thursday night most of the campers were here. Some of us went shopping at the local stores (which we know very well) and the rest went off to sight see and visit friends. We stayed in and grilled dinner and ate in the rec hall, some of us had dinner in their RV's and others went out.

Friday was spent playing games and sitting out under the trees, which hasn't been possible since our November campout. We were informed that the local Catholic Church was having a fish fry that night. Most of the group went and reported that the food was really good and there was plenty of it. Some of us went to Camp Verdi for lunch that day and were pleasantly surprised by the new restaurant and lunch menu. We all agreed that even though the prices were higher that it was well worth it. Also during our stay we went to the little Mexican restaurant across the street from the park. The food was really good and the service was also. I hope this place makes it, because we can walk to it and the people seem very nice.

Saturday was a little cold and windy, but nothing we weren't use to. The pot luck dinner was good as always, with more food than we could eat. Our cooks are outdoing them selves. We played games and had more fun, then off to bed. Sunday morning (an hour earlier) thanks to day light savings time, came bright and dry. Our hosts, the Wolfs and Collins had a wonderful casserole, juice, biscuits and Janelle's homemade jelly, ready for us. It was soooooo good. We set off on our way home feeling warm and full, ready for the next campout.

Some news within our group is that three members have new rigs. Congrats to Pat and Steve Webb on their new to them Sunsetter RV, Al and Sharry Buckner on their new to them Mobile Scout and to Kathy and Dan Gabriel on their new Rockwood. Our club is just getting so "good looking" and up to date, we can hardly stand ourselves!

Birthdays for March are Johnnie Servis, Forrest Coleman and Marlene Stephens. Please stay healthy and happy AND SIGN UP BY THE DEADLINE for our next campout at Johnson Creek.

See you there,
